To my dearest grand daughter Thaariini,

I was totally astonished to see the beautiful art work you did for your school competition. The aquarium picture was very bright and colourful. You are blessed with the good skills of drawing and painting.

I remember when your mum was four years old, she used to scribble on the walls and tables. It looked like messy balls of hair. However, that 'art piece' was snow flakes for your mum. I did not see the innate potential your mum had then. But now, I see that you have inherited the potential your mum had.

Please make me more drawings and pictures so that I can put them up on my walls and show it to my friends when they come. I am so proud of you and hope that someday you will become a famous artist.

We should take a trip down to places with fantastic scenery - places like the Botanic Gardens, West Coast Park, Mount Faber and Pierce Nature Reserve to enhance your drawing ability. We can spend quality time together with a picnic as well. Grandma will give you all my support to see you achieve your goals.

Always remember what grandma has taught you. Knowledge is power and live life with moral values.

From Your Loving Granny Gopal
